DESCRIPTION

There are boats that sail... and others that leave their mark on nautical history. The 1980 Riva Superamerica 48 belongs to this latter category. More than just a yacht, it represents an era when Italian luxury began to conquer the sea with the same passion and sophistication with which Ferrari dominated the roads.

At nearly 15 meters in length, the Riva Superamerica 48 exudes a presence difficult to describe in words. Its smooth lines, the perfectly integrated flybridge, and the combination of stainless steel, fine wood, and glossy fiberglass create a timeless aesthetic that continues to turn heads in any port.

Stepping aboard a Superamerica is like stepping back into the golden age of Italian nautical design. Lacquered woods, enveloping upholstery, and chrome details create a warm and sophisticated ambiance, where every element reflects Riva's obsession with perfection.

Its cabins offer spaciousness and comfort, while the interior wheelhouse maintains that analog and elegant feel that has become an object of admiration for collectors and lovers of classic nautical history.
